The Advocate.

VOL. IV. NO. 42. HUNTINGDON, P.Q., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1886. $1.00 PER YEAR

ASTRONOMY AND METEOROLOGY

BY WALTER H. SMITH, MONTREAL

President of the Astro-Meteorological Association; Author of "Smith's Treatise on Atmosphere and Weather Unified," "Lunar Influence on Vegetation," et Cetera; Almanac for 1886; formerly Associate Editor of "Evans' Weather Bulletin" and "Almanac."

CALENDAR.

Thursday, Oct. 21—Sun rises 6.24, sets 5.05.
Friday, 22 Venus.
Saturday, 23—Sun fast of clock, 16 min.
Sunday, 24—Eighteenth after Trinity.
Monday, 25—Sun rises 6.28, sets 4.58.
Tuesday, 26—Moon in conjunction with Jupiter and Venus.
Wednesday, 27—New moon, 2h. 21m. noon.

WEATHER FORECAST.

For the week ending Wednesday, Oct. 27 1886, over a portion of the United States from Montreal to Washington and Southward—generally fair weather may be expected, with warm days and cool nights, with light frosts in the Northern districts, and heavy frosts in the Southern districts.

The storm which will cross the Continent from the Pacific Coast, will reach the Western States about the 25th inst., and the Eastern States about the 27th inst., and will be followed by cool weather.

The storm will be attended with rain, and probably some snow in the Northern districts.

The storm

MISS POTTER'S PROPOSAL

I really think it would be a relief—I only know it all happened, although I can't think of it even now without feeling my blood boil at the door;—but, there! It's no use crying over spilt milk, not that I should dream of degrading myself by shedding a tear over such a paltry creature.

But to begin at the beginning.

It was about eighteen months ago that our old doctor died, and the practice was taken by a gentleman from London, who was, you heard, a widower without encumbrances.

Of course Dr. Short's death was much regretted, as he had been the means for nearly forty years, but as he was a confirmed bachelor, with the top of his head like a billiard ball, and not at all particular about the linen, his loss not materially regretted as people might otherwise have been.

He had never been known to alter the style of his dress all the years he lived in Duttingford, and, indeed, I remember him when I was five and this—[I mean a great many years ago, and he always looked just the same.

The new doctor came and settled down in the old house, and soon made himself quite at home among us.

I inquired, just then, to have one at my bad attacks of influenza, which kept me indoors for a fortnight, and Selina, my sister.

As I wanted bed-tea and gruel every two or three hours, and our Susan would have been sure to have put too much pepper in the broth, or else let it burn—not but what she's a very good girl, as girls go, though I did find her talking to the butcher's man for quite ten minutes the other day; and then for her to say it was only about the dreadful amount of bone in last Sunday's joint—but when was I?

Oh, I was saying that as we had both been kept in, we had neither of us seen the new doctor, so when Mr. Mackinlay, our vicar's wife, came over and said, "Miss Potter, I want you and your sister to come to tea this evening and meet Dr. Gregory," it seemed a very good opportunity of making his acquaintance.

Then Selina must needs break in and say, "Mary Ann is quite in an invalid still, and her breath is dreadfully short."

"Sister Selina," I replied, taking her up, "allow me to answer for myself; and I'm sure if I take my little shawl and gossiper, and put on my respirator and Shetland veil I can't possibly take cold."

"Well, dear Miss Potter, you must come, the doctor wants to meet you; but I must run back home now, and get out the best china and preserves. I won't trust my Elizabeth to do for the last time we had company she broke two teacups and cut half a pot of damson jam while my back was turned."

We arrived at the vicarage about seven, and the first thing we saw on entering the drawing-room was Mrs. Mackinlaw talking to a stout elderly gentleman, with grey whiskers and rather a pleasant expression—at least, I thought so then.

However, he was introduced to us, and made himself very agreeable, especially after-dinner, when he handed me the muffins four times.

He did not take much notice of Selina, but then, no one ever does, also is such a timid shrinking thing, without a word to say for herself.

Dr. Gregory was most pleasant and polite all the evening, and when we left, insisted on seeing us home, and shook hands on parting quite impressively.

The next Sunday, having taken a little cold again, I stayed in and Selina went to church by herself, of course she forgot to take an umbrella, and as it rained on leaving church, Dr. Gregory, who was there, very kindly brought her home under his.

He would not come in, although he saw me at the window, but he raised his hat and bowed.

Selina came in with a face like a ripe tomato, and choked twice at dinner, she is so unused to a little attention from the opposite sex.

I'm quite used to it myself, and have been since I was quite a girl; but then, I've rather a striking countenance, and Selina has nothing but a pink and white complexion, and a pair of washed out blue eyes.

We saw a great deal of the doctor after this—in fact, it was quite a usual thing for him to walk home with us from church when-ever he was able to attend.

Not that we ever took any notice of Selina, except to look at her sometimes, as though he wondered why she couldn't be her bonnet strings like anyone else.

After a time people began to make remarks, and that low minded minx Mrs. Johnson said to me once—

"Why, Miss Potter, how very friendly you and the doctor are. I suppose he looks upon you as a contemporary, and thinks you are not so likely to misconstrue his attentions as a younger woman might."

I could have shaken the woman where she stood for her impudence, but drew myself up and said in a way I generally find effective—

"Mrs. Johnson, perhaps Dr. Gregory likes a little sensible conversation, which he can't get everywhere."

Of course, I was not going to let Selina's insinuations make any difference in my behavior, and when he called the same week I was very glad to see him, and I told him so.

Selina had gone to see Mrs. Simpson's new baby, which I think rather glad, as there is such an awkward number, and though she is only eight months older than she can help, still we can't leave her entirely alone in the house.

He said he had half an hour to spare, and thought he would like to see Selina particularly, so he sat down and began to talk in a most friendly way, telling me all about his small and limited income, and how he had a nice little property in the fundsl.

I saw him look towards the door once or twice as though he thought Selina might be coming in, and I was sure I had told her where she was, and after that he seemed more settled, and told me how he thought a doctor ought to live, and how he thought a doctor ought to have a wife.

I agreed with him there, although I thought he was getting rather personal, and he looked hard at me all the time with those keen eyes of his, and moved his chair a little closer.

Then he said:

"What did I consider a suitable age for him, he being a widower, to wed?"

I thought about ten years younger than himself would be the thing. (I am over forty myself.) Then he took a day more than thirty-seven.)

He seemed pleased with my answer, and said—

"Yes he thought it would be a great mistake to marry anyone much younger than himself."

Here he began to fidget in his chair, and shuffle his feet in a most uncomfortable way, and I was over—just like I did when young men were going to propose to me, and at the doctor's ball, twenty-five years ago. (It never came to anything, though, as I married Mr. Lucy Watkins, six months afterwards.)

I think it must have been quite five minutes, and I'm sure it seemed hours before he cleared his throat, and said, looking round the room:

"You've a very pleasant home here, Miss Potter, you and your sister together—"

I felt myself go red in the face, and thought I should have dropped.

"I suppose you would not like to leave it, and settle down with a husband, if you found you had no fool much distaste at the prospect of having one for a—"

The door opened, and in walked Selina, though I'm sure I never heard her ring, nor was I aware that she had been such a statue.

And it's just like her to come sliding into a room when she isn't wanted; and I am sure Dr. Gregory must have thought me a fool because in, that I quite pitied him.

As that Selina looked any better, and I said to her when he left, which he did about five minutes afterwards, though it seemed like hours to stay to—

"Selina Potter!" I said, "is there nothing else to do in the kitchen range you couldn't have looked after?"

I must say I felt anything but cool myself, but then I pride myself on having a certain self-control, and if I did pour the hot water on the strawberry jam, and cut the butter with my scissors, there was nothing in that to make Selina stare in the way she did, until I thought her eyes would fall into her plate.

I forgot to wind up my watch when I went to bed, and consequently overslept myself.

When I came down to breakfast I really thought Selina would have driven me mad with her questions and enquiries after my health, when I never felt better in my life, though I may have looked a little flushed, and an wonder!

Of course, when one has remained single so long (in spite of all entreaties) the prospect of changing one's condition does seem rather a desirable experiment; though I must say I liked Dr. Gregory, and if anyone had told me that morning that I should ever feel towards him as I do now, I would have said quietly but firmly,

"My dear, you don't know what you are talking about."

I was rather surprised at his not calling again that week, but had no doubt his practice kept him too fully occupied; and although I stayed indoors for three days, I did not catch a cold every week, it never saw him drive past.

Wednesday being a fine day, I went down the town, and looked at the bonnets in Miss Rabbin's window.

I saw what I thought a very suitable one, dove color trimmed roses, just the thing for a quiet wedding, and I felt half inclined to buy it then and there.

However, I thought better of it, and had a peep into the shop through South Street, past Dr. Gregory's house; not that I looked in, but I could see immediately, as he has a hole in the dining-room curtain, and if the brass plate had been a small one I should not have seen it, but he had a nice little property in the funds.

Selina took towards the door once or twice as though he thought Selina might be coming in, but of course as I had told her where she was, and after that he seemed more settled, and told me how he thought a doctor ought to live, and how he thought a doctor ought to have a wife.

I agreed with him there, although I thought he was getting rather personal, and he looked hard at me all the time with those keen eyes of his, and moved his chair a little closer.

Then he said:

"What did I consider a suitable age for him, he being a widower, to wed?"

I thought about ten years younger than himself would be the thing. (I am over forty myself.) Then he took a day more than thirty-seven.)

He seemed pleased with my answer, and said—

"Yes he thought it would be a great mistake to marry anyone much younger than himself."

Here he began to fidget in his chair, and shuffle his feet in a most uncomfortable way, and I was over—just like I did when young men were going to propose to me, and at the doctor's ball, twenty-five years ago. (It never came to anything, though, as I married Mr. Lucy Watkins, six months afterwards.)

I think it must have been quite five minutes, and I'm sure it seemed hours before he cleared his throat, and said, looking round the room:

"You've a very pleasant home here, Miss Potter, you and your sister together—"

I felt myself go red in the face, and thought I should have dropped.

"I suppose you would not like to leave it, and settle down with a husband, if you found you had no fool much distaste at the prospect of having one for a—"

The door opened, and in walked Selina, though I'm sure I never heard her ring, nor was I aware that she had been such a statue.

And it's just like her to come sliding into a room when she isn't wanted; and I am sure Dr. Gregory must have thought me a fool because in, that I quite pitied him.

As that Selina looked any better, and I said to her when he left, which he did about five minutes afterwards, though it seemed like hours to stay to—

"Selina Potter!" I said, "is there nothing else to do in the kitchen range you couldn't have looked after?"

I must say I felt anything but cool myself, but then I pride myself on having a certain self-control, and if I did pour the hot water on the strawberry jam, and cut the butter with my scissors, there was nothing in that to make Selina stare in the way she did, until I thought her eyes would fall into her plate.

I forgot to wind up my watch when I went to bed, and consequently overslept myself.

When I came down to breakfast I really thought Selina would have driven me mad with her questions and enquiries after my

SIR PETER LUMSDEN.

How He Gained Valuable Information Relegated to a Dark Man.

(Baltimore Letter.)

One of the members of the English legation at Washington lives also some considerable gossip regarding Gen. Sir Peter Lumsden, of whom the papers made daily by reason of his relations to the Anglo-Russian boundary question to create talk.

"Poor Sir Peter," said this gentleman, "has not been a success at all. He was sent to fix the service of the East India contingent, and distinguished himself as a youngster in the terrible meeting of ——— for children residing in or about the town and in the precincts of the shire and local female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Half a dozen pleasing events a month, leasure and zest and salt for "Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and takes no other kind.

A COMPLETE BREAKDOWN.

"For ten years," says Joseph M. Harbaugh, of Wallsenburg, Col., "I did not see a well day—was a bed-ridden victim with dyspepsia, liver complaint, catarrh and debility. Three doctors attended me and gave me up. When Dunsbach Blood Bitters came to my notice, I felt like grasping at any hope for me, when

The ADVOCATE is sent to subscribers until an explicit order is received for it discontinuance, and all payment of arrearages is madeges required by law. Remember that the publisher must be notified when a subscriber wishes his paper stopped. All arrearages must be paid.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at the Advertising Agency of Messrs. S. M. PETTENGILL & CO., 10 Spruce street, where contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

THE ADVOCATE.

HUNTINGDON, OCTOBER 28, 1886.

The election in Chicoutimi and Saguenay resulted in the return of the Government candidate, E. St. Hilaire, by over 800 majority. By the sudden death of the member for Iberville, Mercier loses a strong supporter. A new election cannot be had until after the House meets, as the writs must be signed by the Speaker. The Government has now a majority in the House, and is not likely to resign in favor of Mercier.

The invitation extended to the directors of the Eastern Townships Bank to open a branch bank in Huntingdon is one which we hope will be sure will be endorsed by one and all. This bank is a solid institution, and confining, as it does, its business to these Eastern Townships is worthy of support by the people who inhabit them. A very good meeting was held on Tuesday afternoon, as reported elsewhere, on the subject, and the result was very encouraging indeed to the officers of the bank who had come here to "spy out the land." We trust the project will be carried to a successful issue.

In an interview with a Gazette reporter, a "prominent M. P. P." made the following remark:—

"Mr. Cameron has stated [most emphatically] in public and private that he will not support Mr. Mercier, adding that the latter may not count on him. He has no reasonable a man to go back on his word, which was pledged to several members as well as to myself."

This is very interesting when we remember how positively Dr. Cameron denied having pledged himself to any course of action, or having given anybody, directly or indirectly, to understand what course he would pursue. It is now in order for Dr. Cameron to give the lie to this "prominent M. P. P." or be content to remain himself under the charge of lying. In the Gleaner of Aug. 6th he said over his own signature:—

"I never, directly or indirectly, by a written agreement or otherwise, apart from my public statements, indicated what course I would feel incumbent on me to pursue in the event of my being asked to act as the representative of this county."

Here is another instance of the Doctor's consistency. In his speech in the House against the Riel resolutions he said: "If my honorable friend (Mercier) should succeed to power on this issue, I tell him, now before this House, he need not count on my support." His "hon. friend" claims he has succeeded to power on that issue, and Dr. Cameron telegraphs him he can count on his support. Comment is unnecessary.

And here is a specimen of the Gleaner's consistency. In its issue of Aug. 6th it counselled the loyal (Anglo-speaking) Liberals of Quebec hands with the loyal Conservatives and "defeat the so-called national party at the coming elections." Just before the election the same journal counselled the English-speaking Liberals of Chateauguay to stay at home on polling day and not vote at all rather than vote against the Riellte candidate, a French Liberal, his opponent being a "loyal Conservative."

Letters to the Editor.

[The Editor of the ADVOCATE does not hold himself responsible for the opinions of his correspondents.]

To the Editor of the ADVOCATE.

SIR,—In your last issue I find that at the reception of the reports from the various polling stations there were the usual rejoicings, such as cheering and chairing. It was therefore incumbent on the successful candidate to gratify his supporters by an effort at speech making. You do not make a full report of what fell from the lips of Dr. Cameron, but enough to satisfy your readers that I had not deaf in extraordinary when I inserted in a former letter to the ADVOCATE that Dr. Cameron was an expert in billingsgate and vulgarity. This last public appearance affords proof of my allegation, since among his opponents he talks of "devils," "ladies" and "parsons." As the nomination day he spoke of "Unions." In the same exhibition of his competency to form a proper estimate of various classes in the community, it never occurred to him that in the attempt to classify "devils" and "parsons" he was endeavoring to construct "a unnatural and unholy alliance."

I have just heard to-day, the moment that Dr. Cameron's term is to be continued. There is no mention of capital on the side of the prosecution. If the suit is prosecuted dethroning is unanimous. Where are the "devils" and "parsons" will be aroused to action.

HENRI NIVER.

Dalveen, Oct. 25th, 1886.

A Bank for Huntingdon.

On Monday evening the village was favored by a visit from Messrs. W. Hencker, President of the Eastern Townships Bank, Wm. Farwell, general manager, and A. Tailer, director, of the same institution, in response to a request made by letter by some of our leading citizens to the effect that Huntingdon was a good field for a branch bank, and that if such a company were established in the village it would be liberally supported. The meeting was held in the Council Chamber, and was very numerously attended by the leading men of the village. Mr. Hencker stated the object of their visit and explained the business principles under which the Eastern Townships Bank is conducted. The bank started in Sherbrooke in 1855 and commenced business in 1859, with a capital of $250,000, the policy of the directors being to confine their business to the Eastern Townships, dealing with farmers and country merchants exclusively, and this had been quite successful, as the profits of the bank's existence. Besides the head office at Sherbrooke, Mr. Hencker said, the bank had branches all in the Eastern Townships, but had no office in Montreal but their agency there were the Bank of Montreal. The Eastern Townships Bank, he said, was a solid institution, the stock being all held on bona fide investments and not in speculation. Their capital was now increased to $1,500,000, in 8?? shares, which were held at 20 per cent. premium. They had now a reserve fund equal to 25 per cent. of the capital and would continue adding to it annually until it amounted to 50 per cent., which dividends had averaged 7 per cent. per annum since commencing business, although in connection with other monetary institutions they had to pass through dark days. He and his friends would like to have the views of some of the citizens present as to the nature and amount of business they might count upon if a branch was established. In answer to a question, Mr. Hencker said the present depositors would have to report to the board of directors, whose next meeting would be held on December 1st, and if the board decided in favor of opening a branch here they would make the necessary arrangements and commence business early in the spring.

Mr. Farwell said they had received encouragement from all with whom they had spoken to-day. He regretted that the bad roads had prevented them carrying out their original idea of making a short tour through the surrounding country, and thought the attendance of so many of the business men of the place was indicative of the strong interest taken in the question of a bank for Huntingdon. He referred to the present condition of the bank and its peculiar fitness for doing business with farmers and country merchants and traders. The principal source of revenue of a bank, he said, was the compounding of good commercial paper, and the circulation of the bank's bills. On deposits in their savings bank department, which are generally supposed to remain for some length of time in the hands, they allowed three per cent., but an unlimited amount deposits no interest was allowed. He was surprised to find that a certain amount of prejudice against banks existed among the farmers of this neighborhood, many of whom had lost through the failure of the Merchants Bank and the Exchange bank later. The stock of the Eastern Townships Bank, being all held by persons well able to meet double liability, and the amount of the reserve fund, were sufficient guarantee for the bills of the bank, which were a first lien on the assets. Their circulation was now $750,000. The double liability of the stock holders represented $3,000,000, and the reserve fund, $375,000, giving $3,375,000 as security for their bills first and for deposits next. He and his friends had used $60 Mr. Macfarlane, of the Eastern Townships Bank, Montreal, whose business amounted to upwards of $200,000 a year, and that of the bank in Montreal was left to the banking of the combination bank, and the branch here if established. They had already spoken to Mr. Andrew Somerville, who thought there was a good field for a branch bank, but it would not pay expenses for the first couple of years perhaps, until the farmers had got confidence in the institution. He (Mr. Farwell) did not expect the bank would do an extensive business all at once, but from what he had seen and heard he thought it would in time probably become a very good business could be developed here.

Mr. Kaney said the farmers certainly had a prejudice against receiving the bills of a bank they knew nothing about, and this would militate for a time against the success of the proposed branch. He thought that the great influence of a good paper like the Observer was secured in favor of the bank, this prejudice would in time be overcome.

Several other gentlemen expressed their views, more or less favorably, and

Mr. W. S. MACLAREN moved seconded by Mr. ALEX. MCNAUGHTON, "That, having heard the explanations of Messrs. Hencker and Farwell, we consider it would be in the interest of the village of Huntingdon and vicinity to have a branch of a bank here, and this meeting express their confidence in the Eastern Townships Bank, and will patronize the same if a branch is established in this village."

The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. HENEKEN thanked the meeting for their expressions of confidence in the bank. He would certainly report most favorably to the board of directors.

A vote of thanks to the visitors was passed, and the meeting dispersed.

Mr. ANDREW WILSON, of the Lily Valo Combination, arrived from Athelstan shortly after the meeting broke up. He had an interview with Messrs. Hencker and Farwell, however, and promised his support to the establishment and the business of his Company here. He also had a consultation with Messrs. Wilson & McGinnis, and put to the farmers upwards of $100,000 in cash.

MARRIAGES.

HANSON—FALLON—At St. Agnes de Dundee, on the 27th October, by the Rev. Father Pouget, Joseph Hanson, to Lucy Fallon, daughter of Mr. Michael Fallon, all of Dundee.

MCNAUGHTON—CHISHOLM—On the 20th instant, at the residence of the bride's mother, Athelstan, by the Rev. Mr. Morrison, B. A., John McLaughlin, Dundee, to Catherine Chisholm, daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Chisholm.

DEATHS.

MCPHERSON—At Dalton, Ont., Oct. 9th, of paralysis, Angus McPherson, aged 69 years, formerly of Kirkhill, Scotland.

CAMERON—At Thalaia, Manitoba, Oct. 2nd, of inflammation of the bowels, Hugh Allan, infant son of Hugh and Isabella Cameron, aged 33 years. The remains were brought to Glencoe, Ont., for interment.

BROWN—At Port Lewis, on the 25th instant, James Brown, aged 78 years.

PATTON—Near Huntingdon, on the 25th instant, George Patton, Esq., aged 85 years, a native of East Lothian, Scotland.

MCMARTIN—At Montreal, Oct. 25th, Alex. McMartin, formerly of Beauharnois, aged 75 years.

The Budget was received in the Austrian Reichsrath Friday with unanimous silence at first, then extraordinary indignation arose on account of the largeness of the deficit. The President restored order with difficulty.

The new Enfield rifle has been finally rejected by the British army authorities because it is thought to be complicated for the service. It will, however, be retained in the reserve of arms. Cost no objection.

From 1870 to 1880 workmen must be discharged from the Government forges on Enfield account of this decision.

SCHOOL OF ART AND DESIGN.

Drawing classes will resume Friday next, the 29th inst., at 7.30 p. m., in the Academy Hall. A good attendance requested.

BY ORDER OF THE BOARD.

Huntingdon, Oct. 24th, 1886. 42

RARE CHANCE!

SPLENDID FARM FOR SALE,

Lot 28, Township of Hinchinbrooke, containing about 100 acres, 75 acres under cultivation, good water all year, well fenced, and in a good state of cultivation. Apply to the Proprietor

THOS. E. HARRIS.

Card of Thanks.

To the Electors of the County of Huntingdon.

GENTLEMEN,—I would hereby express my heartfelt thanks for the kind and generous support given me during the past election. Although unsuccessful, I am strongest to so many of you, I have reason to be thankful for the kindness and care of my supporters but of the people of the County generally. I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your obt. servant,

W. M. SAUNDERS.

Stanbridge, Que. 22nd, 1886.

ROLLER RINK.

On and after Nov. 1st, and until further notice, the Roller Rink will be open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings. Ladies free. Band on Saturday evenings as usual.

JOHN M. H. MOIR.

Huntingdon, Oct. 25th, 1886. 42

NOTICE is hereby given that the general and special collection of the Municipality will positively be completed and all taxes must be paid within twenty days from this date.

No payments in arrears after said delays are liable to costs.

Notice will not be sent us in future years.

JOHN MCARTHUR,
Secretary-Treas.

Huntingdon, 24th, 1886. 42-3

A. CHALMERS

Just opened out, a line of fresh

TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SYRUP,
MOLASSES,

and in fact everything from

FEA MEAL TO TAPIOCA.

Another car lot of that excellent flour on hand, a car load of salt too.

Thanks for continuance of Holiday Goods next week.

MANHOOD
HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED

Just published, a new edition of DR. CULVERWELL'S CELEBRATED ESSAY on the radical cure (without medicine) of SPERMATORRHŒA or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Emissions, Impotency, Nervousness, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, Indirect or Hereditary Diseases, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, CONSUMPTION, EPILEPSY and FITS, Induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, a subject which every man, young or old, should read, to secure sound health and prevent suffering, disease and premature decay, privately, in a sealed envelope, only.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents or two postage stamps. Address:

THE CULVERWELL MEDICAL CO.,
41 Ann St., New York, N.Y.; Post Office Box, 450.

TENDERS FOR WOOD.

TENDERS for wood for the different factories of the Allan Grey Co. will be received until 12th inst. Applicants will please state quality and prices and the number of factories they will supply. Address

MCFARLANE & MACPHERSON.
Huntingdon, Oct. 20th 1886. 41-4

ESTATE CYRILLE TURCOT.

THE undersigned, being about to proceed to the liquidation of the said estate, hereby notify all persons indebted towards same estate to pay without delay, to I. J. L. Deromo, Notary, of St. Chrysostome, P. Q., whatever may be owing to said estate, likewise all persons having any claim against said estate are requested to file the same if not already done, with said Mr. Deromo, as soon as possible.

W. T. CANTWELL,
Malone, N. Y.
I. J. L. DEROME,
St. Chrysostome, P. Q.
Executors.

41-2

VALLEYFIELD

ROLLER MILLS

A arrangements have been made with MR. BOILEAU, Capt. Hebert, to carry

GRISTS

FROM

ST. ANICET & PORT LEWIS to the above mills and return for

SIX CENTS PER BAG

both WHEAT & FEED.

McDonald & Robb

Oct. 5th, 1886. 41-2

FIRE PROOF ROOFING.

The Victoria Roofing Paint Co., of Cornwall, Ont., are prepared to undertake the roofing of buildings in this district with their Fire Proof Paint, which was successfully tested in the fire grounds in succession. Endorsers may be had to several parties in and about Huntingdon who have used their roofs alone. Orders may be left at this office.

Tenders Wanted

THE Municipality of Hinchinbrooke asks for tenders for the following materials next week. One hundred and eighty loads cobble stone to be delivered on Hinchinbrooke and Allanbrae to Huntingdon macadam roads in specifications.

Also tenders for stoning and gravelling certain sections of the road leading from Herdman to Huntingdon.

Also tenders for stoning and gravelling a portion of the road leading from Andrew Cameron to Howick Village.

Specifications of material, and work to be done on the Allanbrae Road, and the road from Herdman to Huntingdon, can be seen at the office of Boyd & Co., Huntingdon, and at J. Cameron & Co., Allanbrae; and that for the Dewittville road at Jas. Jamieson's store, Andrewsville Corners.

Tenders will be received up to Monday, Nov. 1st, at noon, to be addressed to Arthur Hartman, Secy.-Treas., Hinchinbrook, Que.

The council do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

Oct. 15th, 1886.

Shingles for Sale.

The undersigned is prepared to supply superior Pine Shingles, 18 inches long, at reasonable rates daily.

RAPHAEL STALKER,
Port Lewis.

GRAIN! GRAIN!

The undersigned will pay the highest market price for all kinds of Grain on and after Monday the 11th inst.

ALI-HUGH & CAMERON,
Huntingdon, Oct. 6th. 39-4

NOTICE.

ALL parties indebted to the estate of the late James Fortune, Esq., please settle on or before Nov. 1st 1886, after that date all accounts will be handed to an attorney for collection.

MRS. JAMES FORTUNE.
Huntingdon, October 5th 1886. 39-4

FOR SALE OR TO LET.

MOIRS HOTEL, situated in the thriving Village of Huntingdon, 1? ?p, this house having during its 40 years possession, possessed a favorable opportunity for any person wishing to go into business, personal inspection of premises solicited. The proprietor having a forty years experience, wishes to retire. Some time required. Terms cash. For further particulars apply to

H. H. MOIR.
Huntingdon, October 6th, 1886. 39?

GRAIN NOTICE.

On and after Monday 11th Oct. we will pay the highest market prices for Oats, Peas and Barley.

HENRY & MCCALLUM.

George L. Jordan, M.D.,

Physician and Surgeon,

OFFICE AT JORDAN'S DRUG Store, BURKE, N. Y. All calls promptly attended to by night or day. Telephone connections. 5-1?

BOOK-KEEPING,

Either double or single entry, by an experienced accountant. Books balanced, settled and adjusted promptly. Lessons given, fee one an hour. Address: S. A., Advocate Office.

THE TURN OF THE TIDE!

CARRIES in the dry goods line have for the past few months been at low prices but lately they have taken a rise. Fortunately for our customers we bought early and are now showing an extensive assortment of Dress Goods in the leading lines from 10c per yard up, with Jersey Cloths Buttons and Trimmings to match; Flannels and Under Cloths with Blanket Shawls and Trimmings to match; Velvets, Velvetas, and Silks in Plain, Striped and Brocade; Plain and Braided Jerseys; Ladies' Mantles, Ulsters and Circulars; Men's and Boys' Readymade Suits and Overcoats; also, Suits made to order; Gents Furnishings, Flannels, Boots and Shoes, Stone and China ware, Cutlery, Chemical teas, Flour Oilcloth, Hosiery, Gloves, Fancy Wool Shawls, Tidies and Piano Covers. Hats, &c.

ALEX. MCNAUGHTON & BRO.
Huntingdon, Aug. 30th, 1886.

LOCAL & DISTRICT.

The Cornstown Courier has suspended publication for a time.

Three carloads of cattle were shipped from this station yesterday.

Recount in Beauharnois gave Mr. Bisson 22 majority, as against 2.

J. H. Cameron, advocate, will be at Moir's Hotel, Huntingdon, on Thursday next, Nov. 4th.

Mr. Andrew Gilmore has returned from his trip through western Ontario, where he purchased a quantity of stock.

A meeting of the creditors of Mr. J. B. McCracken, Huntingdon, grocer, was held yesterday, when an extension of time was granted.

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a debating society will be held on Tuesday next in Dunsmore's Hall at 7.30 p.m.

A horse belonging to William Cook, on the Lost Nation road, was burned Tuesday afternoon. The house was unoccupied. Mr. Cook used it while working on the farm. He had dinner there just before the fire.

Attention is called to the advertisement in another column of Messrs. Ross Bros. & Co., Montreal. Their shingle varnish is fire and waterproof, and is claimed to be far cheaper and better than any other article manufactured for a similar purpose.

The Chateauguay Chasm House closed for the season last week, after the most successful season since its opening. Manager Jackson and his estimable lady are to be congratulated on the continued and ever increasing popularity of their well-conducted house and the unrivalled attraction of the Chasm.

On Saturday, about 4 o'clock p.m., a young man named Thomas Webb, son of Lake S. Webb, of Fort Covington, while sitting on a wagon in front of a building in one of his neighbors, took hold of the muzzle of his gun to lift it up, caught the lock on the nail and discharged it, the charge of shot striking him on the side of the face, blowing off the whole side of the head off and killing him instantly.

The annual ploughing matches of the Third Concession Society, St. Louis, and the English R?or Society, occurred on Wednesday and Thursday of last week, respectively. In each of these the competitors were given a special class open to the district of Beauharnois, which brought out ten competitors in the former match and four at English River. The prizes were awarded as follows:—3rd Society, St. Louis, English River Society, 3?, and special prize of barrel of flour for best plaughman on the grounds; 2, J. C. McEwen, 3rd concession, 3?; 3, S. Logie, Chateauguay Valley, $4; 4, A. McGerrigle, do., $3; 5, J. H. McEwen, 3rd Concession, $2; 6, John McIntyre, Chateauguay Valley, $1. At the English River matches—1, Robert Robertson, E. R. Society, $6; 2, D. Robertson, do., $4; 3, John Logan, Chateauguay Valley, $4; 4, D. Baxter, do., $3.

The O'Connor referred to in the following extract from the Walla Walla Statesman, is Michael O'Connor, who for some years resided on the Ridge and is well known to many of our readers. "The Dalles paper learns that a duel occurred about 35 miles east of Antelope a few days ago, in which several shots were exchanged. It appears that Jack France met C. O'Connor, known as Big Mike, on the road and commenced to abuse him, telling him to hold himself ready to fight. Mr. O'Connor borrowed a pistol from a friend, and after exchanging compliments prepared for the encounter. Both commenced firing simultaneously, and France's first shot knocked O'Connor's hat off, and the second penetrated the left side of his coat and vest until stopped by a pack of playing cards on the inside of his vest. O'Connor's first shot struck France's left cheek, breaking the bone and passing out at the right side of the face. His second shot hit him in the right shoulder as he was falling. The cause of the duel was an old feud of many years."

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death of Mr. George Pringle of Trout River which occurred at an early hour on Monday morning last. For many months he has been laboring under a tedious and distressing complaint, which he endured with much patience and Christian resignation. Mr. Pringle was born in the year 1801 in East Lothian, Scotland, and his father was an extensive farmer there. He was well trained in his youth in all the knowledge of scientific farming. He came to Canada about the year 1827, across paniced by his brothers and sisters, and his some time assisted his brother-in-law, the late Major Gardner, in clearing the farm now owned by Mr. County Boyce. His next employment was managing a farm at St. Ours, on the Richelieu, for a Mr. Charles Hall of Montreal, and he used to tell many funny stories of his intercourse with the French-Canadians. He was there for several years, and returned to Huntingdon at the time of the rebellion, where he joined the troop and held the rank of sergeant. In the next contention for the possession of the carrying of the mail between Montreal and Fort Covington, and was one of the most careful and successful of all the mail contractors. While in this employment he bought the farm of 200 acres then owned by the late Captain James Anderson, for the sum of $2,000, which he afterwards at that time a good price. On the expiration of this mail contract he retired to his farm, which in a few years he brought into a high state of cultivation. He was, according to the scientific system which he had learned in his youth. Mr. Pringle was a gentleman much respected by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance. By his sterling honesty and integrity of character he gained the confidence of all who knew him. He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and died in the full assurance of a glorious immortality. He was married to Miss Ann Gardner, who survives him, and by whom he had a family of seven children, all of whom are married and settled in life. The funeral took place on Thursday last, and was largely attended.

New Fall and Winter Importations.

WILLIAM THIRD & Co. beg to announce that they are now receiving and opening out several large consignments of Fall and Winter Importations, which have been carefully purchased in the principal markets of the world, comprising:

Underpants, Undershirts, Fancy Dress Shirts, Scarfs, Ties, Gloves, Hosiery, Cardigan Jackets, &c.

Cases of Tailors' Fancy Dress Goods, Whitneys and Meltin Cloths.

Cases of Fashionable Hats, Soft, Stiff, Irrepressible Drab and Brown Felt Hats, Crushers, Tourists, Travelling Caps, Fancy Tweed Caps, Boys' Hats, Scrub Brooks, Fancy Cardigan Jackets, &c.

Cases of Trimmings, Silk Braids, Cords, Tassels, Silk Plushes, Satins, Velvets, &c.

Cases of Trunks, Valises, Travelling Bags, Rugs, Shawls, Fancy Dress Trimmings and Buttons.

Cases of Ladies' Cloaks, Fancy Knit Wool Shawls and Knit Goods in Boas, Scarfs, Ties, Gloves, Mitts, Leggings, Children's Cashmere Hose, Ladies' Cashmere Hose, Fancy Dress Trimmings and Buttons.

Also a Large Stock of Boots and Shoes, together with an extensive assortment of Fleece Blankets, Horse Clothing, &c., &c., which will be offered at the lowest possible cost, as our motto is small profits and quick returns.

WILLIAM THIRD & CO.

P.S.—Parcel Delivery a la given to Tapestry Carpets, Hall Floor Oil mats, Stoves and Mantles, Hearthrugs, Pipe Shades, and in Boots and Shoes of every description also to Men's Rubber Coats, &c.

Huntingdon, 7th October 1886. W. T. & CO.

ROSS BROS. & CO.,

8 & 10 GREY NUN STREET,

MONTREAL

PAINTS, OILS, VARNISHES, CONTRACTORS' SUPPLIES.

Our SHINGLE VARNISH for Shingles, Tin or Iron Roofs as sold by us during the past TEN YEARS stands out as its superiority over all other, and at PRESENT RATES IS THE CHEAPEST. Examine our Stocks, Samples and Prices before placing orders elsewhere.

Montreal, 23rd April, 1886 49-5

LIGGET & HAMILTON,

Specially invite the ladies to inspect their stock of FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS. Fresh novelties received daily. Extraordinary bargains in DRESS GOODS.

1883 & 1885 Notre Dame Street, Montreal.

All Kinds of Job Printing

neatly and promptly done at the ADVOCATE Office, at moderate prices.

Give us a trial.

Farm for Sale.

The subscriber offers for sale his farm containing 100 acres, all under cultivation. Good outbuildings and dwelling house. Good orchard.

For further particulars apply to

DAVID H. RICE.
Huntingdon, Aug 17th, 1886. 32-tf

C. PREVOST

POWERSCOURT

Has on hand a large stock of

SHINGLES, 18 & 24 per M.
HEMLOCK LUMBER, 12 to 28, 28 per M.
do 11 to 20 ft., 21? per M.
do 20 to 30 ft., 31? per M.

ALSO

Lumber and Wood of all kinds at reasonable prices. 1?y?

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

A book of 100 pages, containing a complete list of newspapers and other advertising mediums, with rates, circulation, etc. A newspaper record containing a complete list of all newspapers that have ever been established, with the dates of the first and last issues of those that are dead, and the changes in the name, politics, etc., of those that have changed. Every one who wants to spend one dollar or a million intelligently in advertising should send 10 cents for this book. Address GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BUREAU, 10 Spruce St., New York.

Fire AND Accident INSURANCE.

J. C. BRUCE,
GENERAL AGENT,
Huntingdon.

None but the best and most reliable Companies represented.

JAS. A. MILLAR

PRINCE STREET, HUNTINGDON, Que
MANUFACTURER OF CARRIAGES & SLEIGHS

ALSO,

All kinds of LIGHT and HEAVY WAGONS kept on hand and built to order at reasonable rates.

Repairing promptly and neatly done. All work guaranteed.

Huntingdon, Mar. 8th, 1884

H. R. McCracken,

AGENT FOR

KARN ORGAN CO.

SINGER SEWING MACHINE CO.

Reapers, Binders, Etc.

NOTICE,

Out of every five Sewing Machines sold one is a Singer!!

Vote for the best man.

H. R. McCRACKEN
HUNTINGDON, QUE.

A LITTLE WARNING

[illegible]

A WASHINGTON EPISODE

[illegible]

A King's Workshop.

[illegible]

Delinged with Sobriefue Offices.

[illegible]

THE CITY OF ROME.

[illegible]

KING'S EVIL

[illegible]

SCROFULA

[illegible]

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

[illegible]

Regenerative Medicine

[illegible]

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

[illegible]

Absolute Cure

[illegible]

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

[illegible]

THE CLOCK LOCK.

[illegible]

Prices that are sure to take.

[illegible]

SPLENDID VALUE.

[illegible]

Electricity?

[illegible]

THE ART OF [illegible]

[illegible]

A Safeguard.

[illegible]

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

[illegible]

WOOL! WOOL

[illegible]

J. B. ROBERT.

[illegible]

Peter Brady, HELENA.

[illegible]

The New Store

[illegible]

NOTICE!

[illegible]

NOTARIAL!

[illegible]

TO RENT.

[illegible]

WALL PAPER.

[illegible]

BORDERS! BORDERS!

[illegible]

THE KEY TO HEALTH.

[illegible]